It is said that the New Hampshire congressional delegation at Washington has not decided upon the name of the candidate to present to President Woodrow Wilson for appointment.

KICKING AT DOVER.

Bills for Clearing Brown Tails Claimed to Be Outrageous.

The bill for the city clearing of brown tail nests from trees owned by citizens of Dover, who did not do the required clipping themselves have been sent out with the result that vigorous protests are being offered by not a few of the receivers. Several have openly protested against the size of the bills and one man remarked on opening his official letter "Why that is an outrage." There appears to be considerable dissatisfaction over the bills and from what is heard about town it is more than possible that the matter will not be dropped by indignant citizens.

DARES DEATH TO RESCUE FIREMAN

Mate of Steamship Majestic Dives After Would Be Suicide Who Had Plunged Into Ocean

New York, May 8.—The White Star liner Majestic arrived today with 761 passengers and mails from Southampton via Cherbourg and Queenstown after an eventful voyage during which one member of the crew committed suicide, and a shipmate who followed his example was rescued as he was about to drown.

On Saturday morning early, two days out from Queenstown, Edward Turner Freeman, disappeared, and was presumed to have jumped overboard. On Tuesday, when the ship was steaming along in a dense fog about four bells in the afternoon watch, William Keon, a coal trimmer, 27 years old, suddenly appeared on deck and jumped over the port side aft, striking the water with a loud splash, and emitting a yell that was heard by Captain John H. Kell on the bridge, as well as the passengers on deck, who all ran to the side to see what the matter was.

An officer and two seamen on deck immediately seized life buoys and threw them overboard for the man who appeared to have repented for his act, and was swimming toward the ship. David Blair, the first officer who was lying down in his cabin, hastily jumped into his uniform and ran on deck to see what had happened. As soon as the fog lifted, the officer saw Keon, apparently very weak, holding up and down on the swell, and without a moment's hesitation, he dove from the rail of the promenade deck into the water. He got hold of a life buoy and started to push it ahead in the direction of the drowning man. While Mr. Blair was swimming toward him the lifeboat, pulled by eight starboard seamen, and steered by Mr. Thompson, tossed and grabbed Keon as he was sinking. Then the first officer was hauled into the boat. When they arrived alongside the Majestic the passengers gave a hearty cheer for the gallant attempt made by the first officer.

Orders from Asst. Secretary of Navy Result of Recent Hearing.

By order of Franklin D. Roosevelt, assistant secretary of the navy, the resignation of Frank M. Wearin, master mechanic in the machinery division at the navy yard, was called for on Thursday. Mr. Wearin left immediately for Washington and it is understood he will appeal to Secretary Daniels in the matter.

PRESIDENT RECEIVES NAVY LEAGUE COMMITTEE

Washington, May 8.—President Wilson today received a committee representing the Navy League. It consisted of Perry Belmont, Colonel Robert M. Thompson and Governor Edmund C. Campbell of Alabama. These resolutions adopted at the convention of the Navy League here last month were handed to the President:

"Resolved, that the Navy League favors legislation providing for a council of national defense to formulate and recommend to Congress a naval policy and standard, said policy to include a continuing and consistent program of naval construction. It recommends that the proposed council of national defense, in formulating the country's policy and standard, take into consideration coast defense, American policies and the naval programs and military strength of possible opponents.

"Resolved, that the convention also recommends immediate legislation for a reformed system in the promotion of naval officers, providing particularly for younger fleet command.

In presenting the resolution Mr. Belmont said: "The proposed council of national defense would furnish the machinery for closer, more direct and official communication between the executive and legislative branches now existing, but essential in formulating national policy. It would constitute the best form of preparation for inauguration of a new era in our relations to other maritime powers, which seems inevitable upon the opening of the inter-oceanic canal. The face of the globe will have been changed and our Government alone guaranteeing neutrality and use of the canal, all nations will look to us for their share in the benefits arising out of a new era of the sea. To increase or diminish our share in it is a serious problem. For its solution may be found in the proposed council. Its establishment was recommended by the platform adopted at Baltimore."

THE ICELAND FISHERMEN

Dangerous Life Led By French Boatsmen in Northern Waters

The life of the French fishermen who spend the season off the coast of Iceland is a term of desperate endurance. The work is done in all weather and during the season between April and late September, France loses one boat, often two every week. In the worst villages of Brittany the little herring grounds are full of empty graves; the crosses bear the names of those lost at sea.

When the tempest overtakes a boat, the men cling to the sides, thrust their knees deep in the upturned hull and hang on to the hand-ropes until their hands let go their hold. When a wreck is found, the bodies sticking in the hull are counted and their number is reported to the first station.

Manager of Athletes and Three of His Stars Who are Headed Pennantward

the pennant, unless his pitching staff goes to pieces. Right now the Athletics look to be the strongest team in the National League. Mack's only problem this year is the twirling staff. In 1912 lack of twirling talent cost the Athletics the flag. This season Mack seems to be a little better off. Big Chief Bender is in great condition and ready for a great campaign on the mound. Jack Cooney has almost recovered from his recent illness and will be ready to take his regular turn in the box about June. The veteran, Eddie Plank is also in fine shape. Mack has two promising youngsters in Pennock and Brown who may help keep the team in the front. The $100,000 infield—Mack, Collins, Barry and Baker—is going better than ever, while the center fielders are showing up well, especially Eddie Murphy in right field. The club is hitting the ball hard. In the first fourteen games Collins has a batting average of .490. The catching department is well looked after by Thomas and Lapp. If the twirling staff continues to perform well the Athletics should capture the pennant.

will likely be the first city visited. A special company which will be organized by Mr. Granville Barker, will also tour America.

Howard Thurston, the magician who invented the train effect in "The Honeymoon Express," saw the scene one morning last week for the first time. Mr. Thurston was playing in Philadelphia and ran over to watch the effect. He complimented the Winter Garden stage hands on the skill with which they operated the train and automobile.

work to handle the weighted lines. The men were Irish players, but the Irish run through them, and the tired crew that find the planks devious to the west to keep out the water down blood.

In a fishing smack, everything is sacrificed to the cargo. The cabin, or forecabin, is narrow, small, filthy and overcrowded. However a man may need air he is not allowed on deck for any purpose but to do his work. Two vertical ladders lead from either end of the deck to the don where the men eat, sleep, and suffer, sweat and pray. The ladders hang one above another, two by two, strewn with straw, or holding each a bear mattress. Two men sleep in a bunk and in his bunk every man keeps everything in order. The chests stand in the under the ladders.

In most smacks the cabin is pervaded with a little red iron stove, where the fire burns night and day to maintain the temperature needed for drying clothing and chafing out. The forecabin is lighted by a kerosene oil lamp.

The first fishing period closes in April or in May. When the work is done the boats run into the docks, take on water and dispose of their catch. The second fishing is done in the sea to the north of Ireland. There the boats disperse and fish with stretched apart. The second fishing season ends in September. Harp's Weekly.

THEATRICAL NOTES

Definite announcement is made to the students that the "Pastor Show of 1913" will turn westward, after an engagement of four weeks in Philadelphia. The first stand in the transcontinental tour will be Denver. The date is June 8. Salt Lake City, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Oakland, Portland, Seattle, Victoria, Tacoma, Vancouver, Calgary, Edmonton and Winnipeg are included in the itinerary. The original cast will make the trip including Charles J. Ross, Trish Prigazna, Eugene and Willie Howard, Clarence Harvey, Louise Brandt, Abigail and Hughes, and eight others. "The Pastor Show of 1913" was produced at the Winter Garden in July 1912 and has been playing ever since without even the loss of even a night.

"Fanny's First Play," produced by New York on September 15 ended its run of thirty five consecutive weeks last Saturday evening. This comes within five performances of the season's record which is now held by "Within the Law." The engagement was remarkable for the fact that there were no changes in the cast, and that the run could have been prolonged if several members of the company had not been compelled to return to London.

With the end of the engagement, Mr. Lee Shubert announces that practically the same players will return to this country in August to present the comedy on tour. Boston

An extra freight crew has been assigned to the work of transferring a big shipment of coal from the docks here to the Pacific mills at Dover.

At a conference yesterday at the South station between General Superintendent J. L. Truden of the Boston & Albany system and the general committee representing the railroad telegraphers, station agents, and telegraphers of that system a satisfactory agreement was made for wage increases and better working hours that have been asked for.

This agreement will require the official approval of Vice President James H. Hustis of the New York Central railroad, who is in charge of the Boston & Albany division. Yesterday Mr. Hustis was in New York but he will meet the men's committee today at the South station.

The terms agreed upon yesterday between Superintendent Truden and the men's committee are very similar to those accepted from the New Haven, Boston & Maine, Central and Central New England systems with in the past few weeks.

The first advertising car of Knott's circus has reached the Boston and Maine lines for billing in the several cities and towns.

The city council of Chicago has ordered all news stands, gum vending machines, etc., removed from elevated stations, and also passed ordinance shutting carrying capacity of steam, elevated and street cars, to number of seats in each car.

The matter of increasing wages of 10,000 shipmen on the Southern railroad system is still open. Negotiations are being conducted by Superintendent Stewart on the part of the railroad.

"THE TWO SALVATIONS"

Thomas P. Yates Will Speak at G. A. R. Hall on Sunday.

Next Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock Mr. Thomas P. Yates, a Bible student and lecturer of Hamilton, Ontario, will speak on "The Two Salvations" at the Grand Army Hall. The speaker has been a student of the Bible for a number of years and discusses human affairs from that standpoint and takes a very optimistic view of the future. He considers the wonderful advancement in general knowledge and inventions as merely preparation for something still better.

Mr. Yates says: "Men are running across new devices all the time. What do you think of wool made from limestone? That may sound strange and hard to believe were it not for the fact that there are no many things being done now that only a few years ago would have been considered impossible. Regarding the wool made from limestone the 'Everyday Life' has this to say: 'Wool not the product of sheep is being utilized abroad for the making of men's clothing. This is known as limestone wool, and is made in an electric furnace. Powdered limestone, mixed with certain chemicals, is thrown into the furnace, and after passing through a furious air blast is tossed out a fluffy white wool. When it comes out of the furnace the wool is dyed and made into lengths like a cloth. A pair of trousers or a coat made from this material cannot be damaged by grease and is as flexible as cloth made from sheep's wool.

"The Bible foretold a time when there would be a general increase in knowledge and points out that it will begin a little previous to the ushering in of the 'Golden Age'."

The International Bible Students Association who have arranged for the meeting have also arranged for the expenses so that it will be entirely free, similar to lectures given in public schools and other educational institutions no collection will be lifted.

MAY SIGN TOMORROW.
Trackmen's Strike May Come to a Head in Conference.

Probably the strike of the 280 track men at the North station terminal of the Boston & Maine railroad will be adjusted at a conference to be held tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock between the committee of the strikers and Chief Engineer A. B. Corbitt of the railroad company.

The strike is for a flat wage rate of $2 a day in place of $1.70, $1.80 and $1.90 that has been paid, and it started about two weeks ago.

Yesterday the first conference was held between President Mellen, Vice President Horn and Chief Engineer Corbitt of the New Haven & Boston & Maine roads. It lasted from 9 a. m. until after 1 p. m.

Vice President Horn then met the representatives of the strikers and after discussing the entire situation, including the matter of yard limits, etc., arranged for a conference for Saturday morning.

PAROID ROOFINGTRIED BY A COURT MARTIAL FOR MURDER

Boston, May 8.—Before a court consisting of nine officers of the navy, a man was placed on trial in the Charlestown navy yard this morning on a charge of killing one of his mates. As the crime was committed on board one of the warships the trial was by court martial, though it is seldom that in time of peace such serious charges are brought before military courts. Usually the cases are turned over to the civil authorities in the places nearest to the scene of the crime.

In this case, which is that of Thomas Johnson, a waiter in the warrant officers' mess on the battleship Nebraska, who is accused of killing George Wilnot, a cook on the same ship, both of them colored men. The offense was committed in the harbor of Colon, Panama, which is the eastern end of the new isthmian canal. It was a small matter that caused the dispute which ended in the death of Wilnot from a stab wound in the heart—a mere matter of whether the hash intended for the breakfast of the officers in that mess was cooked sufficiently or not.

The date of the offense is Jan. 28, last, and the Nebraska was in Colon Harbor preparatory to a journey north. Instead of turning Johnson over to the civil authorities in Colon he was brought to Boston under arrest, and it was decided to try him here.

The charge, similar to the incident found in the civil courts, was, as drawn up by the judge advocate, manslaughter. But there was an additional charge of conduct to the prejudice of good order and discipline in the navy. On a conviction for the first offense charged the extreme penalty the court martial may impose is 10 years' imprisonment. On the second charge it is 16 years.

No trial of the capital crime of murder can be heard before a court martial in time of peace except when the offense occurs on the high seas.

At the trial when it began in the museum of the navy yard this morning there were only present the nine officers comprising the court, in uniform, the judge advocate and the naval officer, who was chosen by the defendant to plead his case. He was Lieut. C. H. Vogel, of the Marine Corps, who served with the defendant at the time of the offense. The official stenographer of the court, Cornelius Reardon, and a couple of reporters were the only civilians on hand.

The court was composed of Capt. E. W. Kellogg, president, the commander of the battleship North Carolina; Lieut. Commander E. H. Watson; Lieut. Commander E. B. Laramie of the Nebraska; Lieut. Commander R. A. Abernathy of the Chicago, the vessel used by the Massachusetts Naval Militia; Lieut. F. W. Osborne of the engineer department at the navy yard; G. M. Allen, past assistant paymaster of the North Carolina;

Capt. H. D. South of the Marine Corps, stationed at the navy yard; Lieut. W. N. Ekland, who is stationed at the navy yard in the machinery department and Lieut. John Rogers of the Nebraska.

The judge advocate is Edward B. Cole, a brother of Fire Commissioner Cole of Boston, who is attached to the Marine Corps at the Charlestown yard.

When the court convened, soon after 10 a. m., the charge was read to the defendant, and the judge advocate called the first witness. He was Passed Assistant Surgeon C. C. Graves of the Nebraska. He told of being called on the morning of Jan. 28 at about 3.30 while he was in the bathtub and told that a man had been injured. He went to the ship's hospital and saw Wilnot with a wound near his heart. O. H. Wolf, the hospital attendant, told about carrying Wilnot in the stretcher to the hospital. He thought that Wilnot was dead when he reached there.

Adam Brown, one of mess attendants, testified to the trouble between the men. He said that Johnson, the accused, was in the galley, where some hash was being cooked for the officers' mess, when Wilnot made objections. Wilnot said the hash was not ready to be removed. There was a quarrel as the result, and a mixup in which Johnson and Wilnot took part.

A Japanese cabin cook, M. Yakura was then called. Yakura was in the galley when Johnson started to take up the hash from the pan on the stove. He heard Wilnot tell him to let it alone, and in the scuffle that ensued some of the hash was thrown in to Yakura's face and he hastily retreated.

There were several witnesses heard along the same line at the afternoon session and the case is expected to take the greater part of tomorrow.

A BOSTON GIRL'S BUDGET

Boston, May, 1913.—A New York newspaper, famous for its fanning at the Hub's expense, now asks why it is that Boston girls always close their eyes when kissed. The real answer, of course, is that they don't. At least, the typical self-possessed and self-respecting Hubbitt girl, when things get to the pass at which she allows a man to kiss her, does so with her eyes wide open. Miss Boston is not so easily fooled as the wise guys of Gotham try to make out.

Many people who walk daily along Huntington avenue look more curious than ever at the tall, commanding figure of the Hindu prophet and soothsayer who in the past few years has become an institution of the Back Bay. They look curiously because the Yogi and Mazdaznans and such religionists have of late been scathingly attacked by one of their fellow countrymen, Ruslon Ruston-Joe, formerly editor of the Oriental Review, Bombay, and now lecturing in this country. His charges, one suspects will be received incredulously in that section of the Hub which Gellert Burgess once dubbed "maddest Boston," the district in which a new religion is born every day, and a new dupe every second.

Borrowing no one's character possible for the poor man in Massachusetts alone among American states, despite the wonderful success of people's cooperative banks abroad. And even in the Bay State, although the law permitting the formation of credit unions is now several years old, the actual number of these cooperative banking associations is still small. Many people indeed have inquired whether anything is doing in this promising direction. One is glad to learn that at least one of these thrift organizations, the Industrial credit union, which was started in 1910, under the auspices of the Women's Educational and Industrial Union, Boston, is doing well. It has an increasing membership and is able to make loans out of its de-

TO INVESTIGATE THE NEW ENGLAND ROADS

Washington, May 8.—Atty. Gen. Mo Reynolds will soon begin a broad investigation of the New England railroad and steamship situation, with particular reference to the New York, New Haven & Hartford system. With in a few days he expects to announce the appointment of a special assistant to take immediate charge of the inquiry, which will deal with conditions from the viewpoint of the Sherman Anti-Trust law.

Pres. Mellen of the New Haven and Pres. Chamberlain and Chairman Smithers of the Grand Trunk Railway of Canada, are already under indictment in New York on charges of conspiracy to restrain trade by alleged relations of the two roads. The broader inquiry of the Department of Justice will reach beyond those charged, with the purpose of ascertaining whether a monopoly has been attempted or accomplished in New England through the suppression of competition.

The testimony recently taken by the Interstate Commerce Commission regarding the situation and the results of the investigation by the Grand Jury which indicted Messrs. Mellen, Chamberlain and Smithers will be studied by the department in connection with the new inquiry.

posters at comparatively low rate of interest. Compared with the showing made by the Pioneer Canadian people's bank at Leeds and with the many cooperatives abroad, this Massachusetts association is small, but its growth will bear watching.

"If I only had the price of a ticket to New York" sighed one ardent suffragist. Oh you ought to have pawned something and been in the parade said another enthusiastically. "It was grand. We marched under the banner 'Let the people rule,' and we enjoyed every minute. It wasn't true either, that, as one of the anti charges, we were dressed up to attract men. It was a parade of earnest, brilliant women, interested in a great cause. Every other account heard of the big New York suffrage parade agrees in bearing witness to the impressiveness of the long line of delegations from many states. The Massachusetts parade was strong enough to make a good sized section in the parades and their enthusiasm was like that of a crowd of Boston base ball fans.

What a social center the library may be in a small community is beautifully shown in the suburban town of Milton where at present an important picture exhibition is going on in the tasteful little art gallery at the top of a delightfully appointed building. Milton is rather exceptional even among Massachusetts towns in the interests which find their focus at the local library its preeminence being due partly to the high quality of the citizenship and partly to the initiative of the librarian, Miss Gertrude Forrest, who has taken the lead in various movements that have attracted the attention of educators throughout the country. Classes in Eugenics and Sociology are innovations in library work that have been started during the past winter at this progressive institution. In helping to cultivate a taste for the fine arts the Milton library has for some time past been a leader. One remembers a well arranged exhibition of the works of William Morris Hunt who was a former resident of the town. Various print exhibitions have been shown as well as general exhibitions of paintings. Just now the showing is of the works of C. Scott White, landscape painter, and one understands that other features are in prospect for another season. Such a library is far removed from the dry as dust repository of other days. The sight of school children and young people flocking into it on a fine May afternoon is an encouraging example of the kind of competition that is here and there waged against the "movies" and dance halls and other cheap attractions. One's only regret is that there are not more libraries like Milton. So many of the libraries especially in the smaller towns, are still presided over by sleepy custodians whose chief object in life is to prevent small boys from making a noise in the reading room.

120 HORSES DIE IN THE FLAMES

Boston, May 8.—Ten buildings were burned and 120 horses killed, by a fire which caused a loss of $45,000 in the Roxbury district early today. Several tenement dwellers had narrow escapes and one man, George Engman, was so seriously injured as to require hospital treatment.

The fire was caused by the overturning of a kettle of hot fat in the Luncheon Sea Grill on Warren street and soon spread to other buildings on Zeigler street and Harrison avenue. One of the buildings destroyed was the H. B. Cook livery stable, in which 121 horses were quartered. Only one of the horses was saved.

Parades and Processions.

The interest felt in the recent parade of woman suffragists at New York suggests what a factor processions are in American life. From the elephants, tigers and callopie in the circus parade to the political torchlight, the procession is the typical American public festival. Considering that the people have been parading ever since they were big enough to march with a lunch basket in line for the Sunday school picnic, it is perhaps singular that these processions are not more effective. The one idea seems to be bigness, to multiply as nearly infinitely as possible the marching units, all dressed about alike. The more tired the spectator gets the more successful the show. A parade is really fine art, where groups are arranged with an eye for harmonies and variety of color. The big Masonic parades have shown some conception of processional possibilities also by arranging men in the form of squares, triangles and other symbols.

In life or death, comedy or tragedy, the parade is always with us. A group of men may individually seem only shambling or shuffling specimens. In a company, though, they fail to keep step or line, somehow the musical impulse, the contagion of uniform and rhythmic motion, make them lift their heads and look a little like real men.

"Rastus on parade" almost transforms the corner loafer into a soldier. The relatives riding in carriages to the last resting place, the secret order conveying a brother to his long home, suggests how parading expresses the American heart.

Formerly the men did most of the parading. But now the women are at it. It may be sign and symbol that they refuse longer to have any limited corner of the earth roped off as their "sphere."

Eat Meat.

No man who lives on meat was ever known to lick his wife or ask for a divorce. Adam got into a row right off because he had no meat, butter or black bass. Napoleon lost Waterloo because the allied forces had bacon for breakfast the morning of the fight. The French had vegetable soup. No war can be successfully waged without meat. Americans are the most frisky people on earth because they eat the most meat. A vegetable diet woman is as cold and clammy and unlovable as a turnip. If you wish to put roses in the cheeks of your girls, vitality in their every motion, and brains in their heads, feed them meat. If you want your boy to get a job and hold it, go to the front, and amount to something, give him bacon grease, ham fat or tallow, three times a day. The world is full of cranks who are always gelling up some new fad about hay soup or corn fodder tea.

This Was Cruel.

One of our most popular young ladies played a cruel joke on her mother, and this is how it happened. She accidentally found a love letter that her father had written to her mother in their honeymoon days of courtship. She read the letter to her mother substituting her own name and that of her lover. The mother raved with anger and stamped her foot in disgust, forbidding her daughter to have anything to do with a man who could write such nonsensical stuff to a girl. The girl then gave the letter to her mother to read and the home suddenly became so quiet that she could hear the snowflakes falling in the back yard.

A Little Sensible Advice.

Tearing another's character to pieces will not help yours no matter how dirty the other man's may be. Pointing out the weeds in your neighbor's yard will not make those in your own yard more beautiful. The white cottage and brown mansion each hide trouble from the world. People talk and know not whereof they speak. They retail slander to show how foul is the dish most palatable to them. Let us each mind our own business and we will never be out of employment.

Coming Events Cast Their Shadows.

The ground hog isn't the only animal that's afraid to see its shadow. The express company magnate now sees the parcels post shadow whenever he gets in the sun, while the dove of peace sees flying beneath it the black shadow of the war vulture.

They Impart Strength.

Onions, according to a leading physician, have little food value. But they are not to be despised as the doctor probably will admit. They impart a sort of—of lasting aroma, don't you know, to real food, when engulged as a concomitant thereto.

English Speaking World Prepares to Celebrate Hundredth Anniversary of the Treaty of Ghent.

Delegates from Great Britain and all her colonies assembled at New York a few days ago to arrange with an American committee for the celebration in 1915 of 100 years of peace among English speaking peoples. Among the foreign notables who came to the United States for the conference were Alderman G. de Bruyn and Alphonse Van Werckel of Ghent, Belgium, where the treaty that began the century of peace between the two great English speaking nations was signed. Alderman de Bruyn said Belgium already had begun preparations "for a warm and worthy participation in the coming festivities." In this illustration are shown Andrew Carnegie, one of the leaders of the peace movement in America, and Lord Wardsdale, head of the British delegation to the conference.

EDITORIAL OPINION.

The Boston & Maine.

While the outlook for holders of the securities of the Boston & Maine railroad just now are not generally considered encouraging, it is likely that, in the course of time, things will straighten themselves out in effective fashion. A very significant interview has just been reported from Washington, with Commissioner Peabody. "The commissioner is quoted as saying: 'I am myself a Vermont, and there is no place of the situation that appears to me today as so tragic as the condition in which the long-time small investors in Boston & Maine find themselves. I feel sure that the commission will look to the interests of these shareholders just as far as it properly can. I believe that Boston & Maine ought to have an advance in freight rates if its finances are in order; and the commission will undoubtedly allow such increases if and when it is shown that the road is not squandering its financial receipts.'"

Anybody who understands the situation in New England appreciates to the full the fact that the road is doing anything but "squandering its financial receipts." The management has cut down every item of expense not absolutely necessary for running the road, today, and even at that the road has not been earning enough to pay its ordinary fixed charges. If the statement from the commissioner means anything at all, therefore, it means that in the course of time the Interstate Commerce commission intends to allow some increase in freight rates on the Boston & Maine system.

aggravate catarrhal colds and bronchial disorders, and if neglected often lead to pneumonia or consumption.

SCOTT'S EMULSION drives out colds and corrects bronchial troubles. It soothes and heals the affected membranes. It makes healthy flesh, rich blood and strengthens weak lungs. Nothing is so good as Scott's Emulsion for stubborn coughs and colds. INSIST ON SCOTT'S.

Scott & Bowne, Bloomfield, N. J. 12-75.

While of course the business men of New England do not want to pay any more for railroad transportation than is fair and reasonable, it may be said in general that some slight increase in rates would not be importunate if there is to be had the assurance of a betterment in service. The complaints of the last two years have been few regarding the level at which the rates have been held. They have been abundant regarding the manner in which the service is performed. And it is just as true that the railroad management itself has frankly admitted that the conditions of service have been poor and that they should be radically changed, for the better.

The one answer to the criticism of the poor service, indeed, has been rather in the effect that the management knows, better than the critics, even, how bad the service has been; but that the amount required to assure road service has been so large that there has been no hope of raising that sum, under existing conditions. For the first time, there comes from Washington an indication that he road will be allowed to earn enough to warrant consideration of the great and extensive and costly improvements which will allow it to handle its business safely, expeditiously, and satisfactorily.

The word from Washington is the more significant because, it will be recalled, the Boston chamber of commerce has been investigating the conditions of the service on the New England lines, and has merely suspended action, awaiting the results of the investigations by the national authorities. It must not be inferred, therefore, that the Boston business men have concluded their own work. They have not, and they are still working for the best interests of the business of New England. They are just as anxious as any other interests concerned that the small investors in New England, the savings banks, the trust institutions, the great philanthropic enterprises which hold Boston and Maine securities, shall not suffer. In the long run, while at the same time they are not likely to support any such increase in rates as would very seriously handicap New England industries.

That the dividend rate will be the subject of adverse action before July 1, of course, is practically taken for granted. The board of directors has not voted on the matter because it is not absolutely necessary to vote immediately, and the board is in no hurry to anticipate a decision which can be made even as late as a month hence. But it seems so unlikely that anything can happen between this date and that, to show an earned dividend, that the financial world anticipates adverse action. If, however, the action comes at a time when there is some assurance of improvement in the road's finances, have the governor's approval.

Little or nothing is to be gained by a course of opposition to the chief executive of the state. The governor is no weakling. He is of the type that doesn't shrink from a fight, when his fighting blood is up. We are convinced the friends of their cause will make considerably more progress by seeking a reasonable accommodation with the governor, than if they invite a test of strength.

Furthermore, the governor is himself an earnest believer in good roads, and his opposition to the two measures passed by the legislature, and vetoed, is by no means due to opposition on his part to the building of roads by the state, but rather to the methods devised as a result of permission to advance rates, in the near future, the situation will be very decidedly different from what might have been expected if there had been no indication of any change for the better.

This section of the country has passed through periods of adversity many times only to come out more prosperous than ever. The railroads of this section have had their own lean years, in times past, but have "made good" in the face of all handicaps. It is reasonable to expect that history will repeat itself in this case.—Boston Advertiser.

Governor Felker and Good Roads.

We hope, instead of seeking to pass the good roads measure, providing for a cross-state road from Keene to Portsmouth, over the governor's veto, the friends of the measure in the legislature will seek a conference with Governor Felker and try to draft a bill which will, at least, inaugurate the job of building this road, and which would be used. We imagine a conference with the chief executive would result in some proposal which would put this project on its way, even if the appropriation was insufficient to complete the entire task without an additional appropriation by the next legislature.—Manchester Leader.

Has Limited Idea.

Senator Hollis of New Hampshire has a limited idea of the duties of statesmanship, judging from his frank admission that he favors the exemption of labor and agriculture from prosecution under the Sherman law (in so far as the $300,000 appropriation in the sundry civil bill is concerned) "because it is class legislation." We admire his frankness—many senators and representatives have taken exactly the same view but have been afraid to say so—but that line of action, applied by all members of congress according to their personal sympathies, would raise havoc with our form of government.—Boston Record.

CLASS ODE.

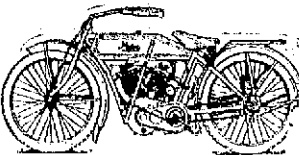

The following is the ode dedicated to the class of 1913, composed by Miss Helen Dora Baylston.

The past has been a summer's day,
Happy and bright and fleet;
Its clouds youth's sun has burned away
Its hours youth's dream made sweet.
As through a rainbow must we see
Dim future's dawnlight break;
With eager hearts, yet lingeringly,
The onward way we take.

We know not what the future holds,
Nor would we if we might;
We ask but as each year unfolds
To wage an honest fight.

That when life's golden sunset rays
Fade in the glowing sky,
Sweet memory may bring back the days
Of well spent years gone by.

P. A. C. LADIES' NIGHT WAS A GREAT SUCCESS

A Cabaret Concert Excellent--Dancing Follows Till One O'clock.

It is pretty hard to beat a success, but this seems to have been the possibility attained by the Portsmouth Athletic Club on Thursday evening when they held their second ladies' night at Peirce upper and lower hall. The directors were rather confident about holding another party after they had scored such a great success with the first one, but the club members were insistent, and the result was the party last evening.

The same ones as the first were followed, that is, a cabaret performance was held in the upper hall from 8 to 10.30 with an excellent concert program. At 10.30 the party took possession of the lower hall or the Premier Scenic Temple and enjoyed dancing until one o'clock. At the conclusion it was agreed that the "Last Shall be First" so that the directors are feeling correspondingly elated.

The attendance was large and this time it was not confined strictly to club members, but by invitation friends were admitted. It was a very jolly party and a most enjoyable one from all angles.

The upper hall was very nicely decorated with bunting and palms and about the big hall were arranged the tables, where cards could be enjoyed. Refreshments of ice and cake, and fruit punch were served during the entire evening.

The concert was given by clever entertainers and they were all forced to give encores. The program:

Vocal selections Miss Ford

Song and dance Miss Champney

A Baseball Story Mr. Kendall

Mr. Robinson presided at the piano.

Miss Champney who made such a hit at the last performance was given a warm welcome. She is one of the cleverest little cabaret singers in the business and all her selections were good. Miss Ford made a very good impression. She has a good voice, knows how to sing in a catchy manner and has a pleasing personality. Miss Ramey sang one very good selection and responded with an encore.

Mr. Kendall is well known here from his appearance at the Masonic ladies' night. He has a bunch of good stories and he tells them well.

At 10.30 the party took possession of the lower hall for dancing for which the Premier Scenic orchestra furnished excellent music.

There were twelve numbers on the program and it was an exceedingly merry party until one o'clock and the end came altogether too soon to please.

The entire arrangements were in charge of the following officials of the club:

Committee of arrangements, Geo. H. Macaulay president, Fred H. Mar den, vice president; Walter H. Pige, sec. and treas. Harry H. Foote, Wil lis N. Rugg, Allan H. Robinson, James E. Whalley, Percy H. als for the normal schools, the state prison and all the departments quartered in the state house. He is also charged with the purchase of all clothing and wearing apparel or materials therefore in all institutions wherein the state provides the same inmates.

The present boards which are legislated out of directors of state institutions are bi-partisan and some of them have had women as members. Many of these have served out of personal interest in philanthropic work of the state at considerable personal inconvenience. Their place will be taken by a small board under the direct personal control of the governor himself, and a majority of its members will be his own appointees. In case the governor cannot attend a meeting of the next board, he can delegate his power to a member of his council so that at all times he will absolutely control its policy. This will make it easy to place responsibility on the administration for the conduct of all institutions affected.

The board of trustees legislated out of power by the act, when it shall have received the governor's signature are:

MORE BILLS FROM GOVERNOR

Highway Appropriation Bill Offered

--Date of Adjournment in Sight

--More Jobs in Sight.

Concord, May 8. A bill came from the governor this morning providing for the issuance of state bonds to the amount of $300,000 for the completion of the state highway trunk lines. This was made necessary by the governor's veto of the million dollar, and Perkins' cross-state highway bill, which cut off appropriations for the purpose.

The house did not get through the morning without the usual roll-call following a division. The demand came from Mr. O'Neil of Walpole on the question of a second reading of the bill introduced by Mr. Couch of Concord for the Judiciary committee, excepting graving timber of a certain size from taxation and which was opposed by Mr. O'Neil.

The house was called to order this morning by Speaker Britton at 10:30 o'clock. The senate came in for prayers by Chaplain Welch.

Leave of absence was granted to Messrs. French of Nashua, Wells of Laconia, Jones of Lebanon, Clifford of Franklin, Conner of Northumberland, Carter of Portsmouth, Avery of Londonderry, Knox of Middlebury, Carroll of Berlin, Mathes of Newmarket, Brown of Canada, Moore of Rindge, Powell of Nashua, Shenton of Nashua.

A resolution expressing the sympathy of the house to Representative Louis N. Knox of Madison on the death of his wife, and providing that when the house adjourns this afternoon it do so as a mark of respect to her memory, was introduced by Mr. Couch of Concord and adopted by a rising vote.

Mr. Young of Sumner introduced a resolution, which was adopted, that the house be in session on Tuesday and Wednesday evening of next week and that the state or that adjournment be fixed for Friday May 16 at 5 o'clock.

Mr. Ahern of Concord thought the business of the session could easily be cleaned up by that time, providing the members could do more voting and less talking.

Mr. Couch of Concord introduced a resolution which was adopted, that the speaker appoint a committee from the house to attend the celebration at the Daniel Webster birthplace this summer.

The bill prohibiting fishing through the ice on mesquite pond in Manchester was read a third time and passed under a suspension of the rules. A bill providing for an appropriation for the equipment of a hospital at the state prison for the treatment of the same and other prisoners was referred to the appropriations committee.

The bill providing for an appropriation of $40,000 for the state college, for the extension of the forestry department and other purposes, was reported in a new draft with the recommendation, ought to pass, and was read a third time and passed under a suspension of the rules.

A bill providing for the issuance of state bonds to the amount of $300,000 for the completion of the state highway trunk lines, made necessary by the veto of the million dollar and Perkins bill, was introduced from the appropriations committee, read twice and tabled to be printed.

A bill coming from the appropriation committee, without recommendation, creating a board of conservation, Mr. Gilwell offered an amendment making the act effective on May 31, 1913, and providing that the board consist of three members appointed for six years at an annual salary of $3000.

The board will take over the forestry commission of the board of agriculture. On motion of Mr. Cutler of Jaffrey the bill and amendment was laid on the table to be printed and made a special order for next Tuesday.

The bill making it unlawful for the owner of any self-hunting dog to permit it to run at large between April 1 and October 1 in the woods and fields and providing in a penalty of fine not exceeding $20, was passed under a suspension of the rules. The bill is intended for the better protection of sheep.

The act abolishing the board of tax and license commissioners and the state liquor agent, and creating a board of tax and license commissioners, one of the administration measures, which provides for a three-member commission at a salary of $1500, was read a second time.

Mr. Pillsbury of Manchester moved that the bill be indefinitely postponed and that with the motion pending the bill be made a special order for Tuesday. The motion was carried.

Mr. Eastman of Exeter asked unanimous consent to introduce a bill relating to the taxation of growers. Mr. O'Neil of Walpole objected, saying that he was opposed to special taxation or tax exemption. Mr. Eastman withdrew his motion, and the bill was introduced by Mr. Couch of Concord, which exempts all growing trees of three feet or over from taxation, for the Judiciary committee.

On the question of the bill being read a second time, Mr. O'Neil called for a division, and on the vote being declared in the affirmative demanded a roll-call, in which 125 voted yes.

At 4:45 p.m. and the bill was read a second time and tabled to be printed. Mr. Polson of Dover introduced a resolution that the speaker of the house send the bill to the supreme court for a decision as to its constitutionality.

Mr. Couch of Concord said that one of the most recent decisions of the supreme court was in answer to the house and to the effect that a bill of a similar nature was constitutional. Mr. Polson thought the bill should be submitted to the court.

Mr. Eastman of Exeter said that the law was clear and permitted exemption from taxation and that there was no question as to the matter. Mr. Hobbs of Wolfboro thought that the constitution should be amended so that there could be some halfway course in matters of the kind.

Mr. Downing of Lincoln said he would like a decision from the supreme court. He had that of Mr. Couch but he was not the supreme court. The house refused to adopt the resolution.

The bill incorporating the bridge of Northern New England, Order of Vasa, was passed, under a suspension of the rules. Representative Warren E. Drew of Oxbrook is wearing a gaffe that won't come off over the receipt of a telegram announcing the birth of a granddaughter, born to his daughter, wife of Attorney B. H. Homan, of Berlin, solicitor of Concord.

Concord, May 8.—The senate today passed the bill abolishing the board of agriculture and creating an agricultural department. This is one of the administration measures. A similar bill yesterday which also abolished the forestry commission was passed.

As you watch the incubator seeing that the temperature is correct, and the moisture as near right as possible, you give some attention to the needs of the sitting hen. A sitting hen is not a well known persistence to the point of error and sit right on her nest for a long time. Therefore she has to be helped. Hens have been known to die as nests merely because they don't know enough to get off for something to eat and drink. In the first place see that there is plenty to eat and drink near her during the day. Usually she will show the instincts of being a well regulated hen and get off for her meals. If she doesn't give her a hand by lifting her as gently as possible, being sure that you do not crush her so that you carry an egg or too off also. Have fresh water and plenty of feed where she can easily get it, and don't disturb her until she has had plenty. Five or ten minutes will be enough to help her each day. She needs a little walk and her eggs need a little ventilation.

The methods for feeding young

At first within the House of Jones there followed sad despondent moans. No hopeful word could reconcile, no honied kiss inspire a smile. "I never knew before" said she, "how horrid household cares could be."

"Upon my word I'm up at six and working still as midnight ticks. I scrub and run and wash and shine to keep the little things in line, and yet around me here and there I see undone another share. I almost feel as if I'd like to join the other ones on Strike. Some morning try it—get a mop; go through from cellar to the top, and I will venture you must see, the greater burdens fall on me."

Now Mr. Jones was passing wise and later, sprang a glad surprise. Through friends who praised the "GOLD DUST WAY," he brought a package home one day.

From tears to sunshine, Wiley now has found the good of "Knowing How" and striking servants fail to stir, the placid calm content of her.

The Gold Dust Twins' Philosophy

ONE day, when Mr. Jones returned with what his weekly toil had earned, he found his little wife in tears and mood not suited to her years. It seemed the cook had bade "adieu," likewise the washerwoman, too.

HAD BEEN MARRIED SINCE OCTOBER

POLICE NEWS

Judge Simes held court Thursday afternoon and disposed of three drunks, all strangers.

The police had five Dover girls in during the afternoon. They had been here over night admittedly without the consent of their parents and they were sent home after a good bit of advice had been given them.

One of the day police has signified his intention of joining the revolver club recently organized. Thursday afternoon he was in the west end when a well known Congress street janitor had captured a skunk in a trap and spotting the officer Frank asked him to shoot him. Now shooting a skunk in a trap under a clothes reel with the kind of a revolver the city of Portsmouth equips its officers with is beyond being a joke. He however, took a chance, in fact he took six chances, but each time drew a blank. Frank thinking that Mr. Skunk must be dead from fright if nothing more, started to test him out with a rake. An hour afterwards Frank was seen carrying a suit of clothes. The officer thereupon decreed that the skunk should die, and leaving for a minute he returned with a shot gun, of a very large calibre and he not only killed the skunk but plowed up the adjoining garden.

WHO PINCHED THE BIRD?

Barred Plymouth Rock Miss- ing from Bow Street Coop.

Who has got this man's rooster?
That is what Gen. Straughan, a colored resident of Bow street, would like to know. George is somewhat of a fancy poultry man and claims to have some fancy birds in his coop that carry some classy pedigree. Among the flock was a barred Plymouth Rock, Latham strain, one of the species that open the eyes of hen fanciers. This is the bird that George is mourning the loss of. George knows that some man who has good knowledge of birds took a phant at the barn yard pet and was bound to annex him. In the dark hours of the night "Old Hickory" was removed from his roost while his owner reposed peacefully under the blankets.
George says the hunt is on night and day and unless "Old Hickory" gets the axe, he will have him back in the flock and exhibitions of his fancy birds will hereafter be annulled.
